One proposal sent back to planners

Council approves plan changes

By Lynne Locke

Upland City Council has approved three general plan changes and sent a third back to the Planning Commission for further consideration.

The most controversial change considered at the June 20 council meeting would have provided a light industry designation for an area southwest of Arrow Highway and Benson Avenue.

The city proposal would have replaced elementary school, park, flood control, and multiple-family designations with light industrial designations to match existing uses in the general area.

Homeowners and property owners opposed the introduction of industrial uses into their residential neighborhood.

Lee Sobel, owner of four acres which would have been affected by the change, asked the council to postpone any decision until he can show that a town-house residential development would be economically feasible.

Noting the opposition of residents, the council referred the issue to the Planning Commission for further study.

Planner Robert Nastase said the planning staff can work with residents to study such problems as housing quality, heavy truck traffic, and storm drain needs.

The changes approved by the council would bring general plan designations into conformity with development already existing in the three areas.

The council approved a change of designation from flood control, commercial, and multiple-family residential uses to light industrial use for the area from Central Avenue to Benson Avenue between Arrow Highway and Foothill Boulevard.

Nastase told the council the area has already developed into industrial uses which would not be compatible with the multiple-family designated on the general plan.

In addition, Nastase said, multiple-family development would over-burden sewage capacity requiring the city to install a parallel sewer line.

The council also approved a change of general plan designation for two parcels east of Central Avenue between the Pacific Electric and Atcheson, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad tracks.

The change from neighborhood commercial to highway commercial could stimulate development of the area, which presently houses a bus yard and other small businesses, according to Nastase.

An adjacent landowner also asked to the council to change the residential designation on adjacent property and noted that the area will not develop into residential uses because of adjacent industrial uses in the area.

Councilman Hal Bailin said the council would favor a joint plan for development of the Central Avenue property and easterly properties and suggested the landowner pursue the issue with neighboring property owners.

In a third change the council approved an industrial designation for an area sough of Arrow Highway between the flood control channel and the Los Angeles County boundary.

The area, which consists of gravel pits and is presently being used for rock quarreying, had been designated as single-family residential on the general plan.

The approved change leaves a small residential area straddling the county line, adjacent to the quarreying operation.

In other action at the June 20 meeting the council approved an ordinance giving the city control over businesses which restrict employes or customers to those over 18 years.

The ordinance will require all adult businesses to have a conditional-use permit, which must be reviewed and granted or denied by the City Council after a public hearing.

City Attorney Donald Maroney said other cities have used similar controls, but noted such a requirement has not yet been tested through a court case.

Pool owners urged to be prepared

Lifesaving classes offered at Upland High

By Dan Carroll

To see Upland from an airplane is to believe that it has the largest pool population in the valley.

"From an airplane you should see all the pools," said Richard Kirkpatrick, pool manager for the Upland High School community instructional swim program, which is currently holding classes. "Upland is a very water-oriented area."

And because the owners of the pools often have small children, Kirkpatrick said they should be prepared.

"We have a lot of pools up here and I'd like to see essentially every parent who has a pool take advantage of the lifesaving classes," he said.

The Upland lifesaving classes teach water safety. The main concern is to teach students how to react when an emergency does arise. A water emergency and water safety and beginning first aid class will be taught at the Upland pool. Advanced first aid is not offered through the Upland lifesaving program, but is offered through community projects and the Red Cross.

The beginning class teaches basic skills to children around 7 years old. An adult beginning class is also offered. Students must be at least 3½ feet tall so their heads will stay above the water, which is three feet deep.

Skills taught the beginner include holding breath for 10 seconds which can be difficult for young children who are afraid of the water, and the prone float, which goes hand-in-hand with the breath exercise. With these two techniques children who fall into the water can stay afloat long enough for a rescue. It also teaches the young child not to be afraid of the water.

The next step is a prone glide with a kick, which teaches children to propel themselves to the edge of the pool. The prone with a kick is the first step towards swimming where the legs come into play.

Also taught are the backglide with a kick, armstroke, crawlstroke, turning over, leaveling off, a chest-deep water and deep-water jump, safety skills, and combined skills. Students who learn these things to the satisfaction of the instructor receive beginner's swimming cards and can go on to the advanced beginner course.

The advanced beginning class teaches survival floating, treading water, under water swimming, safety, rescue, and the use of a personal floatation device.

Intermediate course skills are the breast stroke, rescue skills and a five-minute swim. This course teaches the student endurance.

The swimming course teaches the importance of perfecting already learned swimming skills. Some of the new things it teaches are the side stroke and the use of clothing as a floatation device in case of an emergency.

The advanced swimming skills are a prerequisite course for the junior and senior lifesaving courses.

The final courses are the beginning and the advanced lifesaving courses. To qualify efficient training in the introductory skills are necessary. If a person can swim reasonably well is 11 years old or older, he or she may qualify. Age requirement for the advanced lifesaving course is 15 years.

Instructors at the Upland plunge are required to be Water Safety Instructors (WSI) certified through the Red Cross. They have completed courses in cardiopulmonary resuscitation and first aid. Instructors are Mark Accomazzo, Kathy Crane, Barbara Flynn, Diane Flynn (also a diving instructor) Laurel Johnson, Tom Kleber, Larry Kublman and Nancy Sullivan.

"We don't go into the contact rescues at any depth. We teach you to get something to a person who is in trouble in the water or to give them an extended ranch," said Kirkpatrick.

"In the beginning and the advanced lifesaving classes we teach the common sense rules of swimming. It teaches you to think for yourself in an emergency situation" and to think quickly, he added.

Class dates are July 5-15, July 18-29, Aug. 1-12 and Aug. 15-26. Classes are offered four times a day: 8:45-9:30 a.m., 9:30-10:15 a.m., 10:15-11 a.m. and 11-11:45 a.m.

Registration is scheduled 8:45-9:30 a.m. the week before classes.

Fee for a two-week course is $6. Fees for other classes are: The mommy and me, $6 per week; semi-private, $7.50 per week; and lifesaving courses, $9.

Recreational swim program is open 1-3 p.m. and 3:30-5:30 p.m. daily.

Fee for recreational swimming is 30 cents for ages 12 and under, 40 cents for ages 12-17, and 50 cents for ages 18 and older.

NATURE CAMP — Day camp director Mary Ramirez gives Jodi Regan of Cucamonga Troop 1107 some helpful directions on lashing a table for Pepper Grove Day Camp 2-8 p.m. July 19-21 and 26-28 at Upland Memorial Park. The camp, for elementary school Girl Scouts and their non-scout friends, will include crafts, cook outs, a hike, and an overnight for older girls. Fee is $7.50 for the six-day camp. Board oks study for county medical center

By PETER WONG

Over one member's strong objections Tuesday, a $125,000 contract for a comprehensive study of the county medical center's operations was awarded by the board of supervisors.

Supervisor James L. Mayfield of Apple Valley, the dissenter on the 3-1 vote, said the study is too broad, and that by surveying San Bernardino County's health care needs, it will repeat much of what has been said in previous studies.

But the other supervisors said county government must take a hard look at how it can best provide medical care for those who cannot afford it or cannot obtain it anywhere else, especially in view of rising operating costs at the county medical center in San Bernardino.

"I can't tell you how many volumes of reports and conclusions and health studies were accomplished (previously) .... I've read stacks of these books indicating what our health care needs should be, and now we're going to pay $125,000 to get a rerun on that?" Mayfield asked. "That's a disgrace."

Later, just before the supervisors awarded the contract to Booz Allen and Hamilton, a nationally known management consulting firm, for the six-month study, Mayfield criticized the idea even more sharply.

"I don't need a damn consultant to come out and tell me where we need doctors, where we need clinics or where we need certain specialized services in San Bernardino," he said.

"What I do need is someone to suggest to us how we can get a handle on what is a runaway budget at the medical center."

Other supervisors agreed that operating costs of the medical center were rising quickly, from $24.7 million in the year which ended June 30 to $25.6 million proposed for the current year.

In each case, the county will contribute $3 million directly. The rest will come from the federal Medicare program, the state's Medi-Cal program, insurance firms and patients themselves.

The supervisors who supported the study said that despite its relatively high cost, it was small in relation to the millions of dollars the county spends on health care annually.

"I am convinced this is the right way to go. If ever there was an in-depth study, a one last time to do it right, this is it," Supervisor Robert L. Hammock, whose district includes the medical center, said. "We're talking about millions of dollars a year."

Supervisor Joseph Kamansky of Upland agreed, saying, "If there ever was a time we should make up our minds to fish or cut bait, this is the time to do it and find out where we're going, because the annual budget goes up and up and the need goes up and up."

Supervisor Dennis L. Hansberger of Yucaipa said the question of whether the county should operate a medical center or provide other health care services must be answered before hospital operations themselves are studied in depth.

A goal of the study, Hansberger noted, was "to examine what kinds of medical services need to be provided in the county, what's available in the private sector and ultimately ... to give us what I would call a 'Chinese menu' — saying these are the things the county medical center could be doing."

The cost of the study, Hansberger added, would equal the salaries of two specialists on the county medical staff.

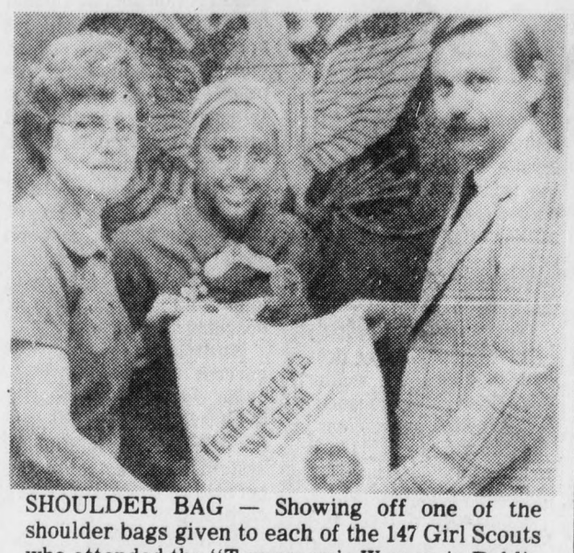

The fifth supervisor, Chairman Robert O. Townsend of Chino, was absent because of vacation.

The study was requested back in February, apparently in view of a possible $1 million increase this year in direct county support for the medical center. Actually, the county's direct contribution to the center's operation is expected to drop slightly this year.

The study will also take into account an estimated $15 million to $20 million in construction envisioned in the medical center's master plan for 1980 — a sizable financial commitment to the medical center.

A number of groups, including administrators of the county's privately operated hospitals and private physicians represented by the San Bernardino County Medical Society, have expressed concern about what they feel is the medical center's expanding role.

Some of them have said the center is increasingly in competition with private doctors and hospitals.

Project to proceed

The realignment of 800 feet of Mountain Avenue at Stoddard Canyon, north of Upland, will proceed under a contract awarded recently by the California Department of Transportation.

The road's safety is to be improved through the realignment of an existing sharp curve. This should reduce the possibility of motorists running off the road.

A large box culvert will be constructed to allow Stoddard Creek to flow under the roadway. This will replace the present culvert, which overflowed during previous storms and damaged the roadway.

They also will have the same options in gaining credit for life experiences by preparing an "Experiential Learning Project."

Beginning in January, 1978, management sessions will be offered on the Pitzer campus in January and June of each year. California drought

It's been here before

The Southern California drought — an unwelcome stranger to a populace that has basked in relatively moderate climate for many decades — has been here before.

Althought collective memories cannot be jogged far enough to recall the last extended period of similarly dry conditions, an historical perspective reveals that the Southland has suffered, and survived, several severe droughts in the past, and undoubtedly will do so again.

Southern California in the 19th century, for example, experienced at least three major droughts and more than twice that number of periods of heavy flooding. These meteorological highs and lows — wet years and dry years — in the southern region of California were the subject of a short paper written in the late 19th century by J.M. Guinn, a local climatologist of the period.

Guinn's remarks, written from an 1889 vantage point which looked retrospectively over nearly a century of California history, provide some evidence to support the theory that the pre-drought "good old days" were neither so good, nor so long ago.

Published in the Historical Society of Southern California's quarterly for 1890, Guinn's composition was brought to light during an historical records search conducted for the United States Army Corps of Engineers by researchers from the University of California at Riverside.

Floods and drought

In its pages Guinn paints a picture of a century of climatological upheaval — recurring cycles of floods, then devastating drought, then floods again. He cites the winter of 1811-12 as the earliest Southern California flood for which he was able to uncover records.

Floods of that year and again in 1822 sent local streams on a rampage. They overflowed their banks, and in the case of the Los Angeles, San Gabriel and Santa Ana rivers, the force of the flood realigned their routes.

White the flood changed the course of rivers, it was the drought which changed the course of California history. A relatively wet year was enjoyed in 1825, and during this and preceding years of abundant rainfall, wide areas of rich pasture land were developed and a thriving cattle industry evolved in Southern California.

But feast turned to famine, and shifting weather patterns beginning in 1827 brought three years of severe drought. Green pasture lands became desolate arid regions and cattle died by the thousands. Only their hides were left behind, to be shipped out of San Pedro in heavy-laden "hide-droghers."

"Beleaguered cattle ranchers were not the only ones to fare badly during periods of drought. The messenger of ill-tidings was also forced to wear his personal albatross: "The weather prophet, with his portents and omens, was without honor at such times," wrote Guinn.

19th century

The first Southern California drought of the 19th century was more than relieved by floods of 1832. Heavy precipitation and rising waters occurred again a decade later, in 1842. The cycle turned full circle once more when another three-year drought, 1844-46, returned full-force "with its usual accompaniment of starving cattle and horses."

True to a pattern, the forces of nature were balanced again when in January 1850 California was beseiged by another deluge. By this time, a massive influx of disheveled immigrants to the rich California goldfields had arrived to receive their first taste of the unsavory weather.

The Sacramento Valley was like an inland sea. Every mountain creek became a river, every river a lake, and the city of Sacramento became a second Vencie.

"But instead of gondolas, the miners navigated the submerged streets in wagon-boxes, bakers' troughs, crockery crates, and on rafts made of whiskey-kegs," wrote Guinn.

"Whiskey in hogsheads, whiskey in barrels and whiskey in kegs floated on the angry waters, and the gay gondolier, as he paddled through the streets, drew inspiration for his song from the bung-hole of his gondola."

Another more severe flood in 1852 brought disaster and financial ruin to many mining camps of the Motherlode region. In Southern California damages were not so extensive.

Any reprieve from the weather, however, was short-lived. The year 1856 in Southern California, as Guinn notes, stands out in the 19th century as a year of tumultuous weather, hardly characteristic of a region renowned for its mild and moderate climate.

It was a year of severe drought, intense summer heat, earthquakes, thunder and lightning and severe sand storms. It was considered the dryest and most unhealthful season the country had known for 20 years. Over the summer and ensuing winter, the loss of cattle in Los Angeles County by starvation was estimated at 100,000.

The great flood

The miserable conditions of 1856 were only a prelude to California's "great" flood of the winter of 1861-62.

In Guinn's words: "As in Noah's days, the windows of heaven were opened, and the waters prevailed exceedingly on the face of the earth."

How voluminously the waters prevailed is indicated by records kept in San Francisco at the time which reported a seasonal rainfall of 50 inches. In Southern California, the Santa Ana River rivaled the Mississippi for a time, and in Anaheim, four miles from the river, a wide sheet of water ran four feet deep.

The rain began Christmas Eve, 1861, and continued for 30 days with only two slight interruptions. One of those brief pauses was reported in the Los Angeles "Star" newspaper:

"A Phenomenon — On Tuesday last the sun made its appearance. The phenomenon lasted several minutes and was witnessed by a great number of persons."

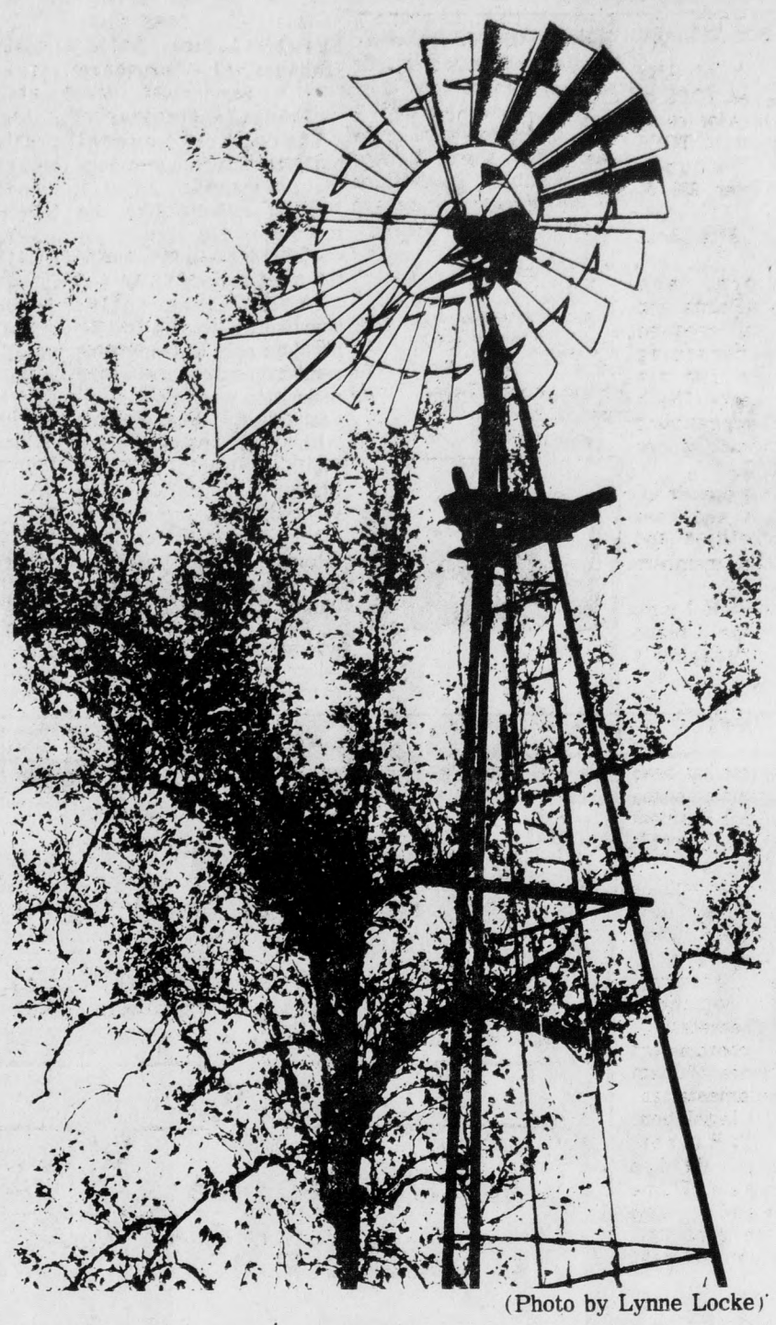

The worst

It would follow that California's worst flood be accompanied by the century's worst drought — three years of it, beginning in the fall of 1862 and lasting to 1865. The seasonal rainfall for 1862-63 (compared to the 50 inches of a year earlier) was less than four inches. The following year saw even less rain.

"The loss of cattle was fearful. The plains were strewn with their carcasses and in marshy places where there were small vestiges of green, the ground was covered with their skeletons," Guinn wrote.

The great drought of the early 1860s finally put an end to cattle raising as the distinctive industry of Southern California.

There would be other floods and minor dry periods to follow in the latter years of the 19th century, but none to match in impact and intensity the 1861-62 flood and the accompanying drought. Only time will tell whether the current drought — already recognized as the worst to occur in more than a century — will surpass those meteorological calamities described by Guinn.

Even at his point in history, Guinn may have felt that "modern" technology had overcome the disastrous potential of drought. In his closing statement, Guinn strikes an optimistic note. It has a strikingly familiar ring to it, one that might just as easily have been sounded yesterday as it was some 88 years ago:

"Increased facilities for irrigation, the development of water by tunneling into the hills, artesian wells, the building of reservoirs for water storage, and the more economic use of water, have done much to counteract the evil effects of the dreaded dry year."

Poison oak

Problem for hiker, homeowner

POISON OAK — Parts of the poison oak pla include: 1-fruit (enlarged); 2-leaves; 3a-flower clusters; 3b-flowers (enlarged).

Living or vacationing in the country among the beauties of nature may be a joy, but it can also be a nightmare if there is poison oak around.

Many epople are sensitive to the oil the plant contains which is very irritating to the skin and membranes when contact is made. It causes a painful, itching rash, swelling and running blisters.

Posion oak is widely distributed in California and is toxic throughout the year. Around the home it poses a threat to children and, in woods and hills, to hikers who do not recognize it and may brush against it or push it out of their path.

W.B. McHenry, Cooperative Extension specialist, University of California, tells how to recognize the plant, how the poison works, about symptoms and treatment, and how to control it if it is growing on or near your property.

How to recognize it

Poison oak is a perennial shrub, 1-6 feet high (or taller). It grows along borders of wooded areas, rangeland, pastures, fence rows, and roadsides up to elevations of 5,000 feet. In wooded areas it may grow as a woody vine attached to trees or climbing over other shrubs.

The leaves consist of three leaflets (three-foliate), with the petiole (stem) of the center leaflet longer than the other two. (This distinguishes poison oak from other "look-alikes.") Leaflets resemble small oak leaves. They are usually 1-4 inches long and irregularly toothed with "lobed" or rounded edges.

In early spring, the new leaves are green, often with a tinge of red. In late spring and early summer, they are glossy-green. In late summer to fall, they turn either yellow or deep red. The leaves drop off in winter.

The fruit is a drupe (stone fruit). It hangs in clusters. When immature, it is greenish, turning tan or yellowish-white when mature. Black fibers mark the white, hard, waxy, inner flesh.

Poison and symptoms

The skin irritant of poison oak is present in the sap in all parts of the plant except the pollen. When any of the plant parts are broken — by insects, birds, implements, animals, or humans — the irritant is released.

If bodily contact is made with the plant, or with anything that has touched it, a painful, itching skin rash and swelling may result within a day or two and may last several weeks. In severe cases, oozing blisters may appear. The entire face, neck, and other parts of the body can be affected.

Contamination can also occur when wood sticks from a poison oak plant are used to skewer meat for barbecuing, or when its leaves and twigs are burned. The poison is carried in droplets by smoke and may be inhaled. Or the poison may be transferred to the meat and eaten, causing serious gastric problems involving the mucous and alimentary canal membranes.

Contamination is most likely to occur during spring and summer when the sap is abundant and plant easily bruised. Dermatologists say that oozing blisters do not spread the rash since their sole content is body fluid, but they may become infected. Both recontamination and spreading occur when contact is made with contaminated clothing, shoes, hunting or garden implements, or household pets or birds.

There is no evidence that a person will develop immunity even after repeated contamination. Eating a leaf will not confer immunity as is commonly believed. Poison oak is not contagious.

Treatment

If possible, wash skin immediately after contact with the plant. Hikers will find it helpful to carry some of the little foil packets containing moist cleansing tissues (sold in drug stores and notions departments) to use when water is not near.

The infection is treated by applying patent lotions or creams available at pharmacies. When swelling, blisters, fever, or vomiting occur, it is best to consult a physician, who may prescribe drugs which may provide quick relief.

Washing the affected skin areas with brown laundry soap, or other soap, will remove only the excess poisons, since the poisons are believed to combine immediately with skin proteins.

Controlling the plant

There are three ways to do this: physical removal, stub treatment, and foliage treatment.

If there are only a few plants in a garden or near the home, they can be physically removed.

Gloves and protective clothing should be worn when digging out the plants. The clothing should be thoroughly laundered before using again. All top growth and roots to a depth of 8-10 inches below the plant base as well as horizontal root runners should be removed.

Do not burn any part of the poison oak plant because the smoke will contain the irritating oils.

Stub treatment involves removing existing above-ground portions of the plant, leaving a 2-4 inch stub. Paint the freshly cut stub with water-soluble herbicide, 2,4-D. Occasionally, water the top of the stub to carry the herbicide into it.

Herbidices

Two herbicides, silvex and amitrole can be used, but McHenry recommends using amitrole around the home because it is less damaging to other plants nearby. He advises against using these herbicides in or near vegetable gardens.

Spray the leaves when they are fully developed and when the plant is actively growing - April through June, but before the yellow or red leaf stage occurs.

Heartworm warning

By Robert L. Stear, D.V.M.
Manager of Veterinary Services
Norden Laboratories

There are several parasitic infections in dogs that are spread by biting or sucking insects like the mosquito. Heartworm is one of these — and is one of the most serious.

Until recently, heartworm was a major problem only in tropical or semi-tropical areas where mosquitos were present all year. Today, dogs infected with heartworms during visits to warm southern states are serving as reservoirs of infection in other parts of the country. They are making heartworm a national canine health problem.

Dogs develop this disease when they are bitten by a mosquito carrying immature worms, called microfilariae. The microfilariae live in the dog's bloodstream and mature into adult heartworms four to nine inches long. Heartworms become a threat to you pet when the size and number of the adult worms interfere with the passage of blood through the heart and the operation of the heart's valves.

The best way to control the heartworm problem is to prevent its development. Before the mosquito season begins in your area, take your dog to your veterinarian for a heartworm checkup. If your veterinarian finds no heartworm larvae in the dog's blood sample, he or she can prescribe a medication containing diethylcarbamazine. This is the safest, most reliable preventive medication for heartworms. It is now available as a new palatable table readily accepted by most dogs. Added to the dog's food every day during mosquito season, it will kill the microfilariae soon after they enter the dog's bloodstream.

If uncontrolled, heartworm larvae live under the dog's skin for about three months and then migrate to the heart and large blood vessels. Six to eight months later, the adult worms produce a new generation and free-swimming larvae appear in the bloodstream. Mosquitos that bite this dog also pick up the larvae, starting the cycle once again.

A dog carrying only a small number of heartworms may show no outward signs of infection. However, as the worms multiply, a number of symptoms develop — easy fatigue, frequent cough, labored breathing, even fainting spells after exercise. Symptoms vary greatly from dog to dog, and may also include itching and anemia.

If your dog does have heartworms. the treatment is in two parts. The first does of medication kills the adult worms. Several weeks later, a second drug is given to kill the immature worms in the bloodstream.

Your veterinarian will have specific instructions for the care of your pet during the treatment period. The most important part of the care is absolute rest and quiet so that the masses of dying worms do not form a clot in the lungs or large blood vessels.

Your veterinarian may also prescribe drugs to reduce the inflammation and infection, or to strengthen your pet's heart action during this time.

Extermination of a large population of heartworms places a sever strain on the dog and must be handled slowly and carefully. Most veterinarians, including myself, prefer to prevent the disease rather than treat it.

Never to fail again ... indoors!

Try art of hydro-growing

The name is hydro-growing. Like its cousin, hydroponics 30 years or so ago, it's taking the town by storm. And "town" is used adsvisedly. Hydro-growing is the newest indoor sport.

To the indoor grower, long used to pots and watering cans, it opens an entire new way of doing things ... and doing them better. All you have to think of is another way to indoor success ... and a way to realize it.

You walk into a nursery and select the plant that meets your fancy, providing it also meets the fancy of the sure-fire indoor plant list we've given you. But, you say, that plant is in a pot, rooted in soil and wouldn't that cause a bit of a problem when the idea is to grow a plant in water?

The answer is a resounding "no!" — not when you know how to go about it. And that means to prepare in advance. Here's how:

Have sufficient small rock or gravel up to pea size on hand in advance. Or any inert stone in this range size (limestone isn't inert but marble is, to give you an idea), fired (or to be technical) vitrified clay (which you may find in the uncolored and unperfumed types of kitty litter), wood shavings, anything you can think of that isn't chemical active between pea size down to large sand, such as screenings. And you must have an inner container with a drainage hole or holes and an outer one without drainage. Whether sitting in a dish in a room, on the patio or porch or used as a hanging basket (wire or rope attached to outer container) makes no difference. But, as with other systems, inner container must sit on a nest of small rock of any kind placed on bottom of outer container.

Rap briskly sides of the container the plant came in. This loosens soil, stops its clinging to the sides. Now hold upside down (a la a newborn baby) and pull container upward and free of the ball of soil. (But, if it breaks up, don't worry.) Turn on your hose or tap at about lowest velocity you can work with. Slowly, very slowly wash soil gently away until only roots, including the all - important but so very tiny feeder roots, remain.

Before this you should have partly filler inner container with tiny stones or wood shavings or whatever you like. Put denuded plant down gently on this. With gentle motions of a finger or so spread the roots outward and gently — a few at a time — place stones or whatever over roots until plant is in place, or to level where soil once was. Shards of some kind (broken record, bottle, stones, anyting) should be placed over holes of inner container so it won't lose any of growing medium you've just so carefully put in.

Now you take a gallon pail or part of a pail that holds a gallon and fill with water. Don't use fresh, cool, chlorinated water but water that has stood overnight and reached room temperature and lost its chlorine content. Now add an ounce of a good liquid fertilizer. One ounce, that's all! With this method you're going to use fertilizer with a frugality never experienced before.

Plant, container and all are lowered into this stirred solution. After this, plant is let to stand and drain over another container, by holding or sitting on some kind of mesh tray. Excess or runoff is poured back into pail of fertilizer solution for use again.

Once a week at least you give your plant its nutrient bath.

Observe your plant or plants. Some need these edible baths more than others. Your clue is the beginning of that wilty look. Some plants get along with just a few spoonfuls of extra solution now and then. Your fool-proof idea is to let plants begin to get a bit hungry - thirsty look. But never to let get entirely dry. A wonderful medium! Otherwise just tend your plants as you would any other way, and let nature take care of itself. That's hydro-growing. You'll be surprised.

Gardening for health

America is exercise conscious today. There still are joggers in great numbers, and mass numbers of people playing tennis and riding bicycles, and countless Californians are engaging in daily exercises. The devotees are exercising for health's sake, pursuing stronger and healthier bodies — and piece of mind. There are many ways to promote good health, but from a physical standpoint, athletic types as well as non-athletics have long expounded gardening as a healthful hobby. In a survey conducted by the American Medical Association, it was found that 47 per cent (137,500) of the doctors polled used gardening to keep their health and sanity. Among the doctors, gardening topped all other hobbies and sports.

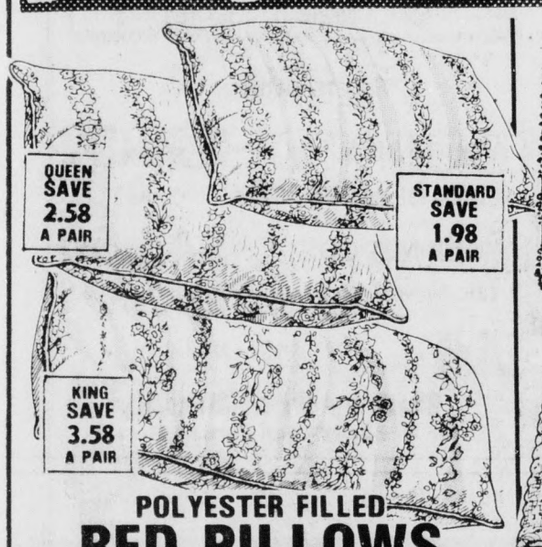

INDOOR PLANT — Grape ivy, the smaller cousin of Kangaroo vines, does well in a well-lit room cascading from containers or trained up on lattic works.

Royal Lipizzan Show plays July 15

SAN BERNARDINO — Charles Skelton, a featured artist performing with the Royal Lipizzan Stallion Show appearing at Swing Auditorium on the National Orange Show grounds July 15 and 16, is the man to talk to if you're interested in the art of training a horse. He's been working with them his entire life.

He has found that decisiveness in performance, ease and skill in the application of training aids, moderation in one's demands and rewards for even the smallest achievement all have contributed to his horses' trust in him. He feels that a horse so treated will perform with cheerful acceptance, verve and brilliance.

Skelton will bring his three magnificent Andalusians — Robin, Cortez and Good Guy — to Swing. Especially eye-catching is his ability to control his horses without the benefit of reins. Also pleasing to watch are the coats of the horses rippling like satin under the intensity of the spotlights.

Tickets are now on sale at the Orange Show Ticket Agency, all of Harris' stores.

Entertainment lineup listed for county fair

Singer, writer and guitar-banjoist, Jim Stafford, will be at the Orange County Fair July 20 in the amphitheater, according to General Manager, Kenneth Fulk. The fair runs July 15-24.

Stafford, a country western entertainer, just finished recording his first album, produced by Gernhard-Lobo in Los Angeles. His first single, "Swamp Witch" made the top 40 across the country. His second "Spiders and Snakes" was also a hit heard across the radio dial.

He has also been featured on the Merv Griffin Show, the Mike Douglas Show, Johnny Carson, the Midnight Special, American Bandstand and the Ted Mack Amateur Hour.

The Orange County Fair Board of Directors has officially approved a line-up of more top entertainment to headline the upcoming fair. Roy Rogers and Dale Evans will appear on Saturday and Sunday, July 16 and 17. Jose Feliciano, one of the world's premier guitarists, will perform on Monday evening, July 18. Grammy-winning singer-guitarist George Benson will perform selections from his gold and platinum records on July 21, dividing his performance between instrumentals and vocals.

On Senior Citizens' Day at the fair, Tuesday, July 19, stars from the Lawrence Welk show will perform in the Amphitheater. The Boos Brothers will appear on July 16 and 17, while the Hudson Brothers will appear on Friday, July 22. Balladeer to play

RIVERSIDE — A Sam Hinton performance during the summer months at the University of California, Riverside, has become almost as traditional as the folk tunes with which he entertains. His eighth annual excursion into the world of folklore and fun is scheduled for July 23 in the UCR Commons Cafeteria.

Balladeer Hinton will again choose from his repertoire of several hundred folk songs from all parts of the world for the 7:30 p.m. concert. Advance tickets are available at Harris' Riverside store and at the UCR Commons Desk.

The personable singer-guitarist is an unusual mix of musicologist, folklore expert and biologist, in addition to his regular duties as School Relations Officer at UC San Diego.

Theater festival sets plays

The fifth Annual Redlands Theatre Festival will be held in the outdoor Prospect Park Amphitheatre Aug. 2 - 29.

"Manny," "Oliver" and "She Stoops To Conquer," performed in repertory, will be the three productions presented under the artistic direction of Cliff Cabanilla, Associate Professor of Theatre at Crafton Hills College.

Opening night of the festival will be the West Coast Premiere of "Manny" — a new musical.

"Manny" was first produced at the Dallas Theater Center and is the creation of three members of the Dallas Theater Center's resident professional company.

"Oliver" is an exuberant, musical adaption of Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist." The production is loyal to both the letter and the spirit of the original novel.

NEDRA BOLZ — Playing the part of Opal in the Mak Shipley production of "Everybody Loves Opal," Nedra Volz gets an examination by the doctor, played by Dick Reinhard, for an insurance policy. "Everybody Loves Opal" is playing at the Gallery Theatre, 126 E. C St., Ontario. Showings are set 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through Aug. 12. (Photo by Dan Carroll)

Stage review

Play infectious as love

By Dan Carroll

Despite a disappointing first act, "Everybody Loves Opal" at the Gallery Theatre in Ontario is as infectious as love.

"Everybody Loves Opal," the story of a get-rich scheme involving three unlikely crooks and an old lady "Opal," takes on emotional outbreaks of love, sadness, gaiety and anxiety.

The three crooks, Gloria, Brad and Solomon, played by Debbie Hall, Shaun Fesler and John Gaglio, buy insurance on lovable old "Opal," played by Nedra Volz. When all attempts on Opal's life fail, Opal's pure kindness overwhelms them and love takes the place of greed.

The acting ability of Nedra Volz, who has just been recently signed to a television series starring Mickey Rooney, helped pull the show along. The character played by Nedra Volz was the lovable old grandmother of every young boy and grown man alike. A small pun, turn of her head and half smile and the whole audience joined in laughter. The teras on Opal's face in some of the more dramatic scenes drew tears to your eyes. Opal was the character played as real as you or I.

There was a hilarious scene with the Doctor, played by Dick Reinhard. Also in the cast is Barry Nachos as Joe Jankie, Opal's favorite policeman. We mustn't forget Mr. Tanner, Opal's cat.

Mark Shipley did an outstanding job of adapting the play to the theater in the round. The placement of actors and actresses in each scene was superb and the use of available props intriguing.

The play will continue 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through Aug. 12.

The Gallery Theatre is at 126 E. C St., Ontario. Tickets are still available. For reservations call (714) 982-5357.

'Bikecentennial' camping program to be continued

SACRAMENTO — The Bikecentennial camping program, which was an instant success in 1976, will be continued through 1977, State Parks and Recreation Director Herbert Rhodes announced today.

More than 11,000 bicyclists were recorded at the bicycle camps from April through September last year, Rhodes said. The camps are located along a 1000-mile coastal route between Mexico and Oregon defined by the California Department of Transportation.

The camps offer bicyclists water, toilet facilities, and a place to lay a sleeping bag. They are open to nonmotorized travelers on a first-come, first-served basis, with a one-night fee of 50 cents per person and a maximum stay of 2 nights.

Bicyclists are warned that much of the California coast route is not for the average recreational cyclist. Most of the route is for people who have had experience cycling on narrow roads with fast-moving traffic and who are in good physical condition so they can take steep hills and sharp curves. People who are just looking for a pleasant weekend bike ride should carefully check specific route conditions before they start.

A 100-page tour guide published by CALTRANS includes such information as detailed route maps, typical weather characteristics, grades, bicycle laws, and safety tips. This guide can be obtained by sending $1.06 to CALTRANS, 6002 Folsom Blvd., Sacramento, CA 95819.

Loretta Lynn to sing

If word were out that Loretta Lynn and Harold Jenkins were appearing at Anaheim Convention Center July 15, loads of folks would say, "Harold Who?" But if Ole Harold turned out to be Conway Twitty, it would be a horse of a different color.

But let Twitty tell it himself: "It was 20 years ago and I wasn't shooting out any stars as Harold Jenkins, my true name, and his Rockhausers. So, I got out a map and started to look for a new name, which would stand out.

The 6 p.m. sermon topic will be "The Glorious Destiny of the Believer," given by Dr. I. Cedric Peterson, minister of evangelism. Based upon First John 3:1-3, the believer is encouraged with the fact that as a child lovingly adopted by the heavenly Father, he or she may expect unimagineable blessings in the next life.

"His main objective is to help us to communicate the basic scriptural principles of the Christian faith to the next generation," said a church spokesperson.

Jewish Marriage Encanter

Speakers' Night set Sunday

A Jewish Marriage Encounter Speakers' Night will be held Sunday 8 p.m. at Temple Shalom, 1912 W. Merced (near Orange). West Covina.

Married couples who have conducted marriage encounter weekends will speak about the marriage encounter movement, which continues to experience rapid growth.

Rabbi Elisha Nattiv, one of the leaders of the movement, has stated, "Marriage encounter weekends teach techniques of establishing better communication between husband and wife. They are neither sensitivity sessions nor group confrontations. It is a thoroughly comfortable experience in which all the sharing is done privately between husband and wife. These weekends have helped thousands of couples enrich their marriages by bringing husband and wife closer together."

All married Jewish couples are invited to attend, at no cost. This meeting is a prerequisite to signing up for a marriage encounter weekend.

Because waiting lists for the weekends are so long, couples are encouraged not to miss this speakers' night, as it may be some time before the next one is scheduled.

For more information, call the temple office, (213) 337-6500.

Parks for the summer

By Terry Goggin
State Assemblyman

The warm summer weather is luring many Californians from their homes, tempting them to spend their weekends and vacations enjoying the great outdoors.

Many will elect to pitch camp in the State Parks System which, within its 200 separate units, embraces some of the most diverse scenery of any park system in the country.

Last year the state parks — ranging in variety from the Hearst Castle at San Simeon to mountainous wilderness areas in the Sierras — welcomed a total of 54 million visitors.

It's too soon to accurately estimate what effect the drought will have on park attendance this summer. With low water levels spelling an end to recreation at some mountain lakes and streams, we can expect an increase in the number of people visiting coastal areas.

Due to extreme fire danger and lack of water, there is also a good chance that the dry spell will force the closure of some campgrounds this summer. It's best to double - check conditions before setting out.

In another drought - related development, the length of time advance reservations can be made for campsites has been shortened from 90 to 30 days. Reservations, which can be made anywhere from a week to a month in advance, are available through Ticketron outlets.

Campers are alerted to fire danger every year. But the dry conditions of our forests and grasslands make it absolutely vital for all visitors to exercise caution.

A number of rules and regulations have been established to help preserve the delicate ecological balance of the parks. Wood - gathering is prohibited at most units. Rocks, flowers, plants and animals located inside the parks' boundaries may be gathered only with special permission.

Established in 1902, the State Park System encompasses more than three - quarter million acres of land, including preserves, parks, recreation areas, beaches, underwater parks and historic sites.

Each session the legislature takes testimony on plans to further expand the system. Lawmakers also consider other actions to ensure that the parks are serving the needs of all Californians.

Legislation has been introduced this year by Assemblyman Herschel Rosenthal (D-45) with senior citizens' interests in mind.

Rosenthal's proposal, Assembly Bill 95, would allow state residents 62 years of age and older to obtain a "Golden Bear Pass," entitling them to day use of most facilities in the park system.

The state Department of Parks and Receation has published guidebooks and brochures detailing the types of services and activities available at each of the parks. This free information can be obtained by writing the Department at 1416 Ninth St., Sacramento, Calif. 95814.

(Goggin, a Democrat, represents the 66th state Assembly District, which includes Alta Loma and Cucamonga.)

SUMMER APPEAL — Mrs. Donald Sather, a captain in the Salvation Army, tells television star Ron Howard about the organization's social welfare services offered in 81 countries. The summer appeal, now underway in Southern California, will help needy children with summer camp and recreational programs. Donations should be sent to: The Salvation Army, 900 W. Ninth St., Los Angeles 90015 or any neighborhood corps.

Common cause releases campaign financing study

California Common Cause has released a national Common Cause study on the financing of congressional elections.

The report details the amounts and nature of special interest campaign contributions to congressional candidates.

It advocates the replacement of the current system with a system of partial public financing of congressional elections via the $1 voluntary tax check-off system.

The report notes that special interests gave more than $22.6 million to congressional candidates last year, nearly twice what they had contributed in 1974. The report revealed that about 75 per cent of that special interest money went ot incumbents, with some special interests favoring incumbents by as much as 7 to 1. It notes that, aided by that money, more than 90 per cent of the incumbents seeking reelection were victorious.

The report also documents dramatic increases in giving by organized labor and by business and corporate interests. The latter gave more than $7 million dollars to congressional candidates, nearly three times what they had given in 1974. The number of political action committees through which flow labor, business and agriculture and professional dollars soared from 516 in 1974 to 1,166 in 1976.

The report also documents that special interests are particularly careful to give money to incumbents who serve on committees that deal with legislation relevant to the groups main interests.

The American Medical Association, for example, contributed $1.6 million to congressional candidates, more than $74,000 of which went to 29 of the 37 members of the House Ways and Means Committee, which considers national health insurance legislation.

The report explains the public financing legislation that is now pending in both houses of Congress. That legislation would provide that money raised in small private contributions be matched by funds from the tax-check off fund. A spending ceiling is imposed, and limits are placed on the amounts that individuals, organizations and candidates can give to campaigns.

Copies of the report are available free of charge from Common Cause, 601 N. Vermont Ave., Los Angeles 90004, (213) 664-2187.

Bill would aid vets in financing mobilehomes

State Assemblyman Dave Stirling (R-64) has co-authored legislation designed to aid California veterans in financing mobilehomes.

"Mobilehomes today provide 90 per cent of all housing construction valued at less than $25,000 in the United States and meet the housing needs of many California veterans," Stirling noted, adding that the Department of Veterans Affairs has only given out one mobilehome loan within the last five years, despite the fact that 50 per cent of all housing starts in the United States are manufactured homes.

"Present law allows the Cal - Vet Program to loan only $12,500 for the purchase of a mobilehome and there are no provisions for the acquisition of land," said Stirling.

"This bill, AB 943, provides that a veteran may borrow up to $30,000 for both the mobilehome and the land with a 25-year repayment program instead of the present 15-year period. It takes an income of $23,000 plus to be eligible to buy an average $45,000 home," Stirling added, "and only 17 per cent of American families searching for housing can qualify for homes in today's mortgage market."

"Since the purchase cost of homes has steadily gone up and out of sight for many California veterans, this bill will provide an opportunity for home ownership for the veteran in the middle - and low-income bracket," he concluded.

Clifford Sumrall enters race for seat in Congress

Clifford L. Sumrall of Etiwanda has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination in the 35th Congressional District.

This district seat now is held by a second - term congressman, Rep. Jim Lloyd, a Democrat.

"I'm announcing now," said Sumrall, "because Republicans are at the bottom of the pile and I've got a lot to overcome.

"It will be a long, hard pull. If I'm going to get into the action, I've got to get into it now. Most Republicans agree, since I'm totally unknown."

Sumrall, associate professor of communications and director of debate at Chaffey College, Alta Loma, said in seeking the nomination he had something he really wants to do.

"Get people excited about our economy," he explained. "If we continue with our double - digit inflation, no one will be able to drive the cars they're now driving."

Sumrall is president of the Community Service Club in Etiwanda. He wants to see people accomplish more on their own instead of relying on government for cradle - to - grave security.

"Congress must stop deficit spending," he said. "My Democratic opponent voted to increase the national debt to $86 million.

"Regulatory agencies must be cut back. Congress, in the past 15 years, has added 200 new agencies, bureaus and commissions which are staffed, supplied and supported by the taxpayer.

"I believe in people, not as a mass, but as individuals. The current government has not begun to tap the potentiality of the American people to continue the American Dream.

"Instead, it has stifled it by make-work programs and government controls."

The 35th District includes the Pomona Valley, West End, and Walnut.

CHP to cooperate in fire prevention

Due to extreme drought conditions for the second consecutive year, a potentially hazardous fire season is anticipated. The California Highway Patrol will be cooperating with state and local fire officials to prevent brush and forest fires, Capt. Jim Perkins, CHP Ontario area commander, recently announced.

Capt. Perkins said motorists can cooperate by not throwing burning material from cars and by being careful to avoid driving over dry grass or weeds which might be ignited by a hot muffler or tailpipe.

The California Department of Forestry reported that there were 7,728 man-caused fires in its protection areas last year, and a total of 164,398 acres were burned. Lightning caused an additional 582 fires which burned 3,600 acres in 1976, Capt. Perkins said.

Bi-county paramedic services win approval

A continuation of joint paramedic services between San Bernardino and Orange counties has been approved by the county board of supervisors.

The agreement, which has also been approved by Orange County supervisors, allows paramedics certified in one county to continue to provide service while transporting a patient to or through the other county.

A survey of ambulance services indicates that an average of 10 patients per month are transported to or through Orange County, while only an occasional patient is transported to or through San Bernardino County.

All contest winners

Top cheese dishes

Who made the first Welsh Rabbit? The first Quiche Lorraine? The first Cheese Fondue?

And how did these recipes become known to the world at large?

Pondering on this question as well as the statistics showing a great increase in the use of cheese over the past 10 years, America's leading cheese stores, decided to have a recipe contest. This would show how people were using cheese — surely it couldn't all be going into grilled sandwiches — and would make the very best recipes available to everyone.

Today the results of this contest are being announced.

Mary Ruth Castle of Glendale, Ariz., wins the grand prize of a trip to Denmark vis SAS with a hearty main dish redolent of southwest spices.

Pancho's Beef Stick Limas

The grand prize winner! The hearty dish is a meal in itself when combined with a salad. Take it to your next potluck supper.

1 pound dried lima beans
1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
1 medium bell pepper, diced
½ cup diced celery
1/3 cup cooking oil
½ pound Beef Stick summer sausage, cut in ¼" cubes
1 can (15 ounces) tomatoes, chopped (do not drain)
2 teaspoons crushed oregano
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon dry mustard
3 tablespoons light brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon white pepper
¼ pound cheddar cheese, shredded

Wash limas and place in a 4-quart kettle, cover with water and bring to a full boil. Reduce heat to simmer and continue cooking until beans are nearly tender. Set beans aside; do not pour off bean liquid. In a medium skillet, saute onion, bell pepper and celery in oil until crisp tender; add cubed Beef Stick, stir fry for about 3 minutes. Next, add tomatoes and juice, oregano, chili powder, mustard, brown sugar, salt and pepper. Simmer about 5 minutes to make a rich sauce. Pour the lima beans and liquid, and the tomato sauce mixture into a well buttered 3-quart casserole, or in a Dutch oven; stir to blend ingredients.

Bake 2 hours, uncovered, in a 275 degree oven. Check periodically to be sure casserole is maintaining enough liquid, adding a little water if needed. Just before serving, sprinkle a wreath of the shredded cheese around the edge of the casserole, return to oven until cheese is melted. Makes about 6 to 8 servings.

Creamy Beef Potatoes

A potato dish with a really new and different flavor. Wonderful for that buffet supper when you need something a little out of the ordinary.

½ pound Beef Stick summer sausage
1½ cup shredded cheddar cheese, (about 6 ounces)
1 bag (2 pounds) frozen hash brown potatoes, thawed (or, 8 cups diced cooked potatoes)
1 can (10½ ounce) cream of chicken soup
2 cups dairy sour cream
1/3 cup chopped green onions
1 teaspoon sweet-hot mustard
1 teaspoon horseradish sauce

Cut Beef Stick in half lengthwise. Cut one piece in two half-moon pieces, wrap and set aside. Chop remaining piece of Beef Stick into small cubes. Mix 1 cup of the cheese, chopped Beef Stick and remaining ingredients; spoon into a 9" x 13" x 2" baking pan. Cover tightly with foil. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 1 hour, or until potatoes are done. Remove foil, sprinkle with remaining ½ cup cheese, press half-moon pieces of Beef Stick into mixture, return to oven for 5 to 10 minutes or until cheese is melted. Makes 6 servings.

Zip Dip

¼ pound Koppelzak cheese, finely chopped (1 cup)
2 cups dairy sour cream
1 envelope (1.4 ounces) french onion soup mix
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Combine ingredients, blend well. Chill for two hours, remove from refrigerator and bring to room temperature to serve. Makes about 2¼ cups.

Cheese-Almond-Bacon Dip

Fine cheddar cheese is even better with the crispness of crumbled bacon and the crunch of chopped almonds. Serve with raw vegetable sticks and sesame crackers.

2 strips crisp bacon, chopped or crumbled
¼ pound apple pie cheddar cheese, shredded (about 1 cup)
2/3 cup mayonnaise or dairy sour cream
¼ cup chopped roasted almonds
2 tablespoons chopped green onions or chives

Dipper and crackers, see below

Mix the first four ingredients and 1 tablespoon of the green onions together; add salt if needed. Mound in an attractive serving bowl, serve with a knife and raw vegetable slices and sesame whole wheat crackers. Makes about 1½ cups.

Mushroom and Olive Cheese Squares

This elegant appetizer can be a whole other story when you substitute canned green chiles for the mushrooms and olives. Serve on toothpicks.

2 pounds Big Barn Cheese, shredded
1 bottle (4 ounces) pimiento olives, sliced (reserve juice)
1 bottle (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
12 eggs, well beaten
Paprika

Spread half of the cheese in the bottom of a greased 13" x 9" x 2" baking dish. Arrange the sliced olives and mushrooms evenly over the cheese; cover with remaining cheese. Combine olive juice with beaten egg; pour over cheese - olive - mushroom mixture, sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 to 40 minutes, or until a knife inserted in center comes out clean. Cut into 50 squares. Serve with heavy toothpicks as spears. (For a spicier snack, use two 4-ounce cans of chopped green chiles instead of the mushrooms and olives.) Makes 50 squares.

Peanuts

- Sprinkle ¼ cup of chopped peanuts over your favorite creamed vegetable dish (creamed onions, cauliflower or broccoli, for example) for added flavor and texture.

- Add ¼ cup of chopped peanuts to cooked buttered seasoned rice, or noodles — a new and different taste for these time-honored favorites.

- Add chopped cocktail peanuts to main dish salads and luncheon spreads such as chicken salad (even better with curry and green grapes) or egg salad.

- Carrot/raisin salad becomes even more nutritious when you add 1 cup of cocktail peanuts.

- For nutty shake and baked chicken, roll chicken pieces in flour and egg... then in ground peanuts before baking (one hour at 350 degrees F. for a cut-up 3 lb. fryer).

Buttermilk for pie, dressing

In spite of the rich sounding name and the creamy texture, buttermilk has fewer calories and less fat than low fat milk. Surprized?! Because many people are not familiar with this delicious dairy drink, it's time to examine the facts. Basically, buttermilk is nonfat milk that has been cultured. The tangy taste comes from the development of one particular added culture. The smooth, heavy body is created by both the culture and by pasteurizing the milk at a high temperature for a longer period of time than given either whole or skim milk. Buttermilk has the same food value as the milk from which it is made. And good news for dieters — the caloric value is 80 calories per cup. Sometimes flecks of butter are added for extra flavor and appeal.

Buttermilk fans prize it as a refreshing drink and praise the thirst quenching quality. Just try it sometime with hot and spicy dishes to cool a tender palate. First timers are likely to enjoy buttermilk combined with fruit or vegetable juices. It also makes a versatile base for salad dressings and vegetable toppings. Or add to cream soups hot or chilled for a pleasing tang. Buttermilk also acts as a tenderizing marinade for meats and chicken. And when it comes to baking breads, cakes, pies, etc. buttermilk is an old hand. Recipes made with buttermilk or other cultured dairy foods need less baking powder. That means better flavor, aroma and texture. If you didn't know before, that's why you love those old fashioned buttermilk biscuits, pancakes, muffins, batter breads, pies and on and on.

Buttermilk should be cared for as other fresh milks. You find it in quart cartons in the dairy case next to all the other fluid milks.

BUTTERMILK CUSTARD PIE

1/3 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups buttermilk
3 eggs
¼ cup honey
¼ cup melted butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell

Combine sugar, flour and salt. Gradually mix in remaining ingredients. Blend until smooth. Pour into unbaked pastry shell. Bake in 450 degree oven 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 45 minutes longer or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Cool on wire rack. Chill before serving. Garnish with lightly sweetened whipped cream or sliced fresh fruit if desired. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

BUTTERMILK BLUE CHEESE DRESSING

1 cup buttermilk
½ cup crumbled blue cheese (3-ounce)
½ teaspoon dill weed
¼ teaspoon salt

Combine all ingredients in jar. Shake well to blend. Makes 1 1/3 cups. Especially delicious with tossed green salad.

SMA Oldsmobile SERVICE MERIT AWARD

WE'RE PROUD TO HAVE BEEN AWARDED THE NATIONAL OLDSMOBILE AWARD FOR OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEVEMENT AND QUALITY SERVICE TO OUR OLDSMOBILE CUSTOMERS

In the Pacific Region,

ONLY GRAYDON MURPHY OLDSMOBILE HAS WON IT EIGHT TIMES IN A ROW!

SPECIAL ANNIVERSARY LEASES ON ALL NEW OLDSMOBILES OR ANY MAKE CAR OR TRUCK

CELEBRATING OUR 20th ANNIVERSARY

DEAR OLDSMOBILE OWNER..... I've been in the car business now for more than 47 years. What success I have had, I attribute to the "Golden Rule," which merely means that I treat my customers in the same way as I'd want to be treated when I bought a new car, used car, or had mine repaired and serviced.
The results speak for themselves, both in our steady growth and success as an Oldsmobile dealer and in our year after year national awards for excellence. If you're already a member of our "Olds" family, I thank you for contributing to our success. If not, I invite you to become one soon!

Sincerely, Graydon E. Murphy
